I am writing in support of UBER. As a member of the South Carolina community I am incredibly disappointed that the PSC would shut this business down. As a single women who lives in this state I feel safer when using UBER than when using a standard cab service. I understand that the standard cab services is not happy with this new competition, however UBER should not be punished for creating a successful business plan that has adapted with the changes in people's needs and interest. I feel very strongly that we need to reinstate UBER back into our state. Let's not continue to embarrass ourselves South Carolina.

To whom it may concern,

I understand there are significant legal hurdles and safety concerns surrounding Uber. I only encourage you to negotiate and work towards agreement with Uber. My first experience with the phone app service was actually in Columbia, SC in December of 2014. I was shocked at how quick, easy, and great the service was. I needed to get dropped off at the bus stop at 3 am in order to make it home for the holidays. I was picked up within a minute, which was the most surprising to me especially at that hour. In addition, the driver was a polite gentleman who even offered me bottled water for my trip to Washington D.C. Since then, I have used Uber's service in Washington D.C. and had positive experiences there as well.

I can see so much potential for this organization especially around the university in Columbia, SC. Drunk driving is an issue around my neighborhood, which is just south of Five Points. I am not sure if we have a good taxi system in Columbia, but introducing Uber will almost certainly reduce the number of bar-goers who decide to get behind the wheel of a car after drinking.

The benefits of Uber are not limited to just the points I have made in this email. Finding a way to encourage and respond to the challenges brought forth by innovative companies and people such as these is the marking of an up and coming urban area. I know a lot of Columbia residents who are drawn to Charlotte, NC for this very reason. I will be watching this issue unfold and others like it over the next year to see if I too will be one of those residents.

Sincerely,
Max Wesemann

UBER is an innovative company who should be allowed to conduct business in this state. Their service is fast, easy and reliable. Don't take that away from our consumers.
